WEDDING

MEEK—GEORGE

The United Church at Mildred, Sask., was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, October 13, at 2:30 p.m., when Miss Gwyneth Annie George, only daughter of Mr. Thomas George (formerly of Oyen) became the bride of Mr. George Meek, of Sverdrup, Sask., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meek, of Armbrist, Ont., Rev. A. E. Elliot, officiating.

About forty relatives and friends of the contracting parties assembled to witness the ceremony and express their good will. Mr. Archie Meek, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and Mrs. John Cunningham, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. C. W. MacCallum sang "Until."

After a wedding dinner at the home of the groom's parents, the happy couple left on a short honeymoon, previous to making their home south of Mildred.

Stage All Set For Teachers Convention

Large Attendance Expected

Thirty-six Pupils Will Take Part In Oratorical Contest

The first annual convention of teachers of Oyen Inspectorate will be held in Oyen to-morrow and Friday. An excellent program has been arranged and with a large attendance anticipated the undertaking promises to be an unqualified success.

One of the features of the convention, is the oratorical contest which follows the banquet to-morrow evening, and the keen interest displayed by pupils of both High and Public Schools is most gratifying to those responsible for the program. Owing to the large number of contestants, the time set for the banquet has been changed to 5 o'clock, instead of 6, so that Professor Ottewill's lecture on "Eugenics" may be continued as advertised at 8:30 p.m.

As a progressive Dairymen desiring to secure maximum profits from my milk herd, I realize the necessity of adhering to an organized schedule of care, feeding and handling.

STANDARD MILK PRODUCTION ON ONE OF FAVORABLE CONDITIONS

Any cow in my herd is expected to produce milk of this quality. I have found that the best way to get this result is to keep the cow in good health and to feed her properly.

My first step should be the selection of a cow that has a proven record of high production. I should also select a cow that is easy to handle and that is a good mother.

During the last month, I have been able to produce milk of this quality. I have found that the best way to get this result is to keep the cow in good health and to feed her properly.

Proper selection of dams also will bring the improvement in more milk, better milk and better animals.

A dry cow is the key to a successful milk herd. I have found that the best way to get this result is to keep the cow in good health and to feed her properly.

The growth of the animal is important. Through careful selection, I have been able to produce milk of this quality. I have found that the best way to get this result is to keep the cow in good health and to feed her properly.

The Opportunity Moment For Immigration Effort

By C. W. Peterson

It is clear, as daylight, that the psychological moment for a country to launch a comprehensive colonization campaign is when her agriculture has definitely entered the upward swing. Western history and the experience of those who have been in close touch with colonization work there, point unmistakably to the fact that failure on the land is the greatest obstacle to the efforts of the various agencies devoted time and money to furthering immigration into Canada. It is also a time saying, but in strict accordance with the truth, that the successful settler is our most effective colonist at present. Common sense upholds both of these assertions. Canada can now with confidence enter the field with a vigorous effort to largely arrest her probering population and with the added assurance that in no period of her history were the opportunities more favorable for getting the fullest possible value for her expenditure on that effort.

The time is favorable for a great forward looking colonization and agricultural development program, because agriculture is undoubtedly now in the process of entering an era of greater prosperity. It is estimated that there is a total world area of 13 million acres of arable lands and that it takes the products of 2 1/2 acres to sustain each member of population. It can provide the bare necessities of life for 5,200 million people. It is estimated that with the present rate of increase this number would be reached well within a century, so that babies now born would witness the struggle of mankind for bare existence or wholesale starvation in years of crop failure, crop failure. Of course, such a calamity will be averted. The present world-wide decrease in birth rate is nature's corrective.

Agriculture the world over has developed through the crude, ruthless directive agency of the law of supply and demand. The farmers have, in obedience to this law, for several decades suffered through demoralized prices due to an overabundance of agricultural products. But the reaction is now upon us—the pendulum is swinging the other way, and we have definitely entered an era when food products of all kinds will command a premium in the world's markets. This era should be seized and the price of constantly rising commodity prices, which will be maintained until the organized capitalist labor price of the basic necessities of life should decrease. I repeat that agricultural returns for the coming half century will rise to an increasingly satisfactory level. This tendency is well on the way now.

This prediction is not visionary. It has a definite, historical background. Wheat, Canada's great staple export, is, more or less, the controlling factor in all agricultural prices. The comparatively low wheat prices that have prevailed until the last couple of years cannot be regarded as in any way normal. Canada has enjoyed a virtual monopoly of the sole remaining, undeveloped hard wheat areas. Our wheat monopoly has been a virtual monopoly of the sole remaining, undeveloped hard wheat areas. Our wheat monopoly has been a virtual monopoly of the sole remaining, undeveloped hard wheat areas.

Germany will participate and have direct representation in the world's poultry congress, which will be held in Ottawa in 1927. This information has been called to the local committee by Edward Brown, congress president.

Is Good Quarry Manager

British Woman Says It Is Very Fascinating Occupation

Mrs. Anna Greaves is Britain's only woman quarry manager.

"It may seem that quarrying is a strange business for a woman, but why shouldn't women run quarries?" asked Mrs. Greaves. "Of course I have a formidable plenty of men workers to assist me, but I go into the quarries myself and inspect the seams and direct the methods to be used in getting out the sand and gravel. Signs has become so expensive that I have developed a plant which makes artificial stones and is doing a good business. I find quarrying is a very fascinating occupation."

An Ottawa writer asserts that the King cabinet is the youngest Canadian cabinet since Confederation. That is the age of its eighteen members average less than those of any other. The average is 53 years, the age of the premier, Mr. Robert's the oldest minister, is 69, Mr. Cannon is three years older than Sir Wilfrid Laurier was when he entered the Mackenzie cabinet in 1887, and six years older than Sir Charles Herbert Trueman was when he entered the Macdonald cabinet in 1888.

Popular Montreal Matron Recovers From Long Illness

Troubles Caused by Nervousness and Stomach Disorders Quickly Relieved, Says Tanlac Deserves All Credit

Thousands of men and women suffering from a generally random condition will get a much-needed boost and cheer from the experience of Mme. Montreal, whose quick recovery from a long, serious illness surprised her closest friends. If you never feel quite up to the mark, if you are fagged out, you'll be glad to know about Tanlac and what it did for Mme. Lefort. Here is her story.

"About two months ago, I realized that my condition was far from good. I had spells in which I would be all over, and I would feel as if my head would burst. I suffered from severe headaches and would be very sick at my stomach. I was very nervous and unable to sleep.

"I was advised to take Tanlac and relief that I have kept on taking it. I am now on my fourth bottle and feel like my old self once more. My nervousness and headaches have disappeared, my sleep is better, and I feel like a new person. In the morning I feel rested and refreshed. I no longer enjoy my meals but so glad the longest with me.

CHAPTER XVII

To make Joanna's appearance a dramatic entrance, she waited until she was alone, and then she came, evidently with an impetuous impulse. Yvonne's Joanna had expected nothing of the kind. She walked up and onto the balcony, from whence grand staircase descended. She was still framed in the doorway when she realized that the people in the room below were waiting for her, Joanna, their faces uplifted.

She caught her breath. A hand flew nervously to her throat. She had never been drawn back, but instantly realized that she was too late. Yvonne caught her glance and with a nod assented her.

Then exhilaration leaped through her stifled pulses. The carnival spirit of the scene began to reach up and encompass her. In her wild ecstasy of happiness quivered at her finger tips, in her eyes and throughout the vibrant wealth of her. This was joy, this was the thrill of the winning festival of which her life was but a foretaste. These people, people of her new world, were waiting down there to welcome her among them and their kind! Bravado came into her eyes.

The people in the great room below were waiting for her, Joanna, their faces uplifted.

"Glad! She carries it off as if she had been born to masquerade!" Kenneth worth reached and leaned toward her in her presence. He considered it a splendidly waste of energy. Brandon felt a sharp elation at him. He noted that Rodney was right, his lips slightly parted, and that he breathed bravely.

Joanna moved down the stairs slowly, a softly graceful figure that was taunting in its supple and the fragrance of its challenge. She was conscious of her own beauty, the heart of the beauties her confident arrogance emphasized.

Someone, a man, slipped his hands, and she stepped forward with a single step. Teddy Dominator broke away from Brandon and Kenneth, and Yvonne, leaning his rival to the girl's side. Before she knew his purpose Teddy had caught her up in his arms. For an instant her eyes flashed and she gave signs of scrambling to her feet, but she smothered the impulse. Teddy held her gracefully, easily, as if he were not used to such performance. She settled in his arms and steadied her body by throwing a hand around his shoulder. Her passion slipped and she and alien expanse above them hung lax. When she looked into Teddy's face it was with only mock reprieve.

A woman, her voice already shrill from champagne, cried, "Bravo!" Another echoed the cry and then a babble of voices called out to Teddy and to the girl. Men crowded to the stairs, each eager to perform some share of the task of helping Joanna out of Teddy's arms onto the floor, where she stood behind John and Brandon said to her companion loud enough to be overheard:

"One of Teddy's best points is that he can lose a woman as he has carried that one, without musing her." His face grew a little whiter, and his fingers twisted, and he said, "I don't know what Teddy had put her down his arm in order for a moment around the girl, that he held her close to him while he whispered and that Joanna brushed his cheek with the back of her hand playfully. The woman whom John had overheard was angry."

"Teddy is beginning a campaign. He always does this with a whisper. Whoever this girl is, and whatever she is, there are some people here tonight who will hate her—If Teddy shows signs of following up, just little tabbies will be enough."

John turned to look at the speaker. She returned his glance and started at what she saw in his face. Then she was amused. She said something to her companion, a man who quite evidently would not be her husband.

To every man, she said, "You are to my companion in a low tone. 'You are probably right. He's in love with the girl. Old knock her, or one who would make trouble if he felt like it.'"

Both Brandon and John sought to make their way to where Joanna stood, the centre of a throng of men and women, some fascinated, as was Teddy Dominator, by her anxious beauty and freedom, and others by their sympathetic desire to pay her by fawning upon her protegee.

Neither reached her side before she was whisked away by Lord Teddy. He surrendered her, after a few turns, to those who pressed forward for their privilege.

Men were fulsome in their compliments. The mystery of her was the intriguing subject to which everyone turned. scious, too, that she had been faithful to the present day made which required that underneath that dress she wear but a single garment, so delicate and sheer that it would blend into her skin. Roddy said only that she was pretty and her dress becoming.

Yet she understood that the man who was speaking and who had basted her but a few nights before with the threat of his pursuit of her, already began to take her slim body into his arms and crush it. She decided she would have to strengthen her battlements. She had learned to make her lips protrude, and her jawline edge boldly and saucily. She had the sense that in this order of life, so different from the domain of the girl's counter and its flirtations, it was more dangerous to be provoking.

His is the same, and we have known edge bodily and saucily. She had the sense that in this order of life, so different from the domain of the girl's counter and its flirtations, it was more dangerous to be provoking.

The painter smiled at her in return, and said "I'd say any children in his ad'vice."

She paused a little before she replied: "I had children in love, but none that were born here."

"It is the same," he said—"It is the same; and if one of them had staid again, you, I should, you know, done wrong in any way, would you have cut him off, or what would you have done?"

"Oh!" said the little Pilmig again, with a vivid flash of memory coming into her face, which showed she had no need to think of this as something that night had happened, but knew, I brought him home; I nursed him well again; I prayed for him night and day. Did you say 'vast him off, when he had most need of me? Then never could have loved him.'"

"Then you think you love better than our Father," he said.

"—I, O. W. Oliphant—"

French Premier Has Double

Man Honored in Paris Cafe Was a German

M. Polanco, who had noted men, has his double. He has even several. The most striking came into a boulevard cafe. He had the same closely trimmed, pointed, white beard, the same vigorous carriage, the same piercing glance. Only the waist line was a little more pronounced than that of France's Premier, but so that several of those present really believed that it was M. Polanco himself who stood up to become a minister, a man began to talk. He spoke German!

Made Whole Suit In Record Time

Remarkable Feat—Accomplished by Pioneer Woman in 1864

The story of a woman's feat—a woman of the days of 1864—has been told by a correspondent of the Toronto paper, brought to public interest by the fact that a woolen overcoat was "assembled" in such record time at the National Exhibition.

"Justine Wilkinson, living near the village of Hawley, Ont., had a brother who volunteered to enlist in the Northern army. He received notice to report at a certain place in the United States at a certain time. His wardrobe, however, was scanty, and he required a suit of clothes in which to make the journey. The Wilkinsons were a thrifty family and bought nothing which they could make themselves. They had a flock of sheep in which were several black ones. Emiline caught one of the black sheep (possibly wool), sheared the sheep, washed the wool, carded the wool, spun the wool, weaved the wool into cloth, cut the cloth and made a suit of clothes for her brother. All the work from the first to last was done by her in her home. In one week from the time the sheep was caught, the sheep wearing the suit of clothes, was on his way to the United States.

Have made in death! So recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious diseases—of consumption—of typhoid. They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a wire-stick—and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted. When you or your children sustain any injury, secure against infection by applying Zam-Buk. This balm soothes the pain, stops bleeding, and by destroying all germs prevents blood-poisoning, etc. Hence no time need be lost from work or pleasure by those who use Zam-Buk. Invitations That The Prince Cannot Decline

Some Public Dinners Which He Is Obligated to Attend

The Prince of Wales is so snowed under by invitations to dinners that he has been obliged to impose a limit on acceptances. He was invited to attend the annual dinner of the Incorporated Society of Auctioneers and Licensed Property Agents and his private secretary went to explain why the Prince could not be there.

From the prince's viewpoint, public dinners fall roughly in three categories:—those which have national or imperial character, those organized by bodies with which he has direct personal connection and those held by independent societies which exist for promotion of one particular science, art or trade.

The number of annual dinners in the two categories, at which the prince's presence is practically indispensable, has increased to such an extent that it is now almost impossible for him to attend to those belonging to the third class.

STRAITFORD WOMAN

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Stratford, Ontario.—"After my first baby was born I started to work on the tenth day and did a big morning on the twelfth day. Being so young I was married at 19, and I know what was the matter, so let it be said. I was all run down, weak and nervous, and had a bad disposition. For nearly three months I was in bed. I would always complain of having 'not a head-ache, but a brain-ache.' My mother, I think, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the thing that helped me, and she recommended it to me. After taking two bottles I began to feel a little sleep and to feel better and I have never felt off since then, except for these three months. I can now say I have taken thirty bottles since my second baby was born. I think it makes child-birth easier as I had my second pain with my first three children and very few with my fourth as I was so much to my work alone, but I am still taking the Vegetable Compound as I am nursing baby." Mrs. Ouss, 434 Cherry Street, Stratford, Ontario.

If you are suffering from any weakness, which causes such symptoms as pains in the side and back and nervous feelings, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial box.

The above lands will be offered subject to a reserve bid and the reservations contained in the existing certificates of title and receiving thereon all taxes and minerals. Redemption may be effected by payment of the full amount of arrears at any time prior to sale. Terms will be announced at the sale, or may be obtained from the undersigned.

DATED at Edmonton, this 15th day of August, A.D. 1926.

W. D. SPENCE,

Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs.

A Gentlemen's Game

Billiards has earned this sobriquet because it is clean, healthy, and a relaxing and entertaining game. Play a game of billiards with your friends on modern Brunswick equipment in the comfort of our Billiard Hall, and you easily comprehend this statement.
